

HHS's Healthcare Coverages Management Using Process Libraries and Electronic Handbooks

(Where Shakespeare Meets Freud)

Demonstration

The Bottom Line:

We believe that to truly understand one's universe, one must see it thru multiple “eyes” and also have tools to “communicate” these views.

To do this, we propose editable and cost-saving process documentation “plays” for process developers and participants to help them quickly and effectively learn, integrate, test, teach, and work together.

These “plays” may be added to new or existing systems.

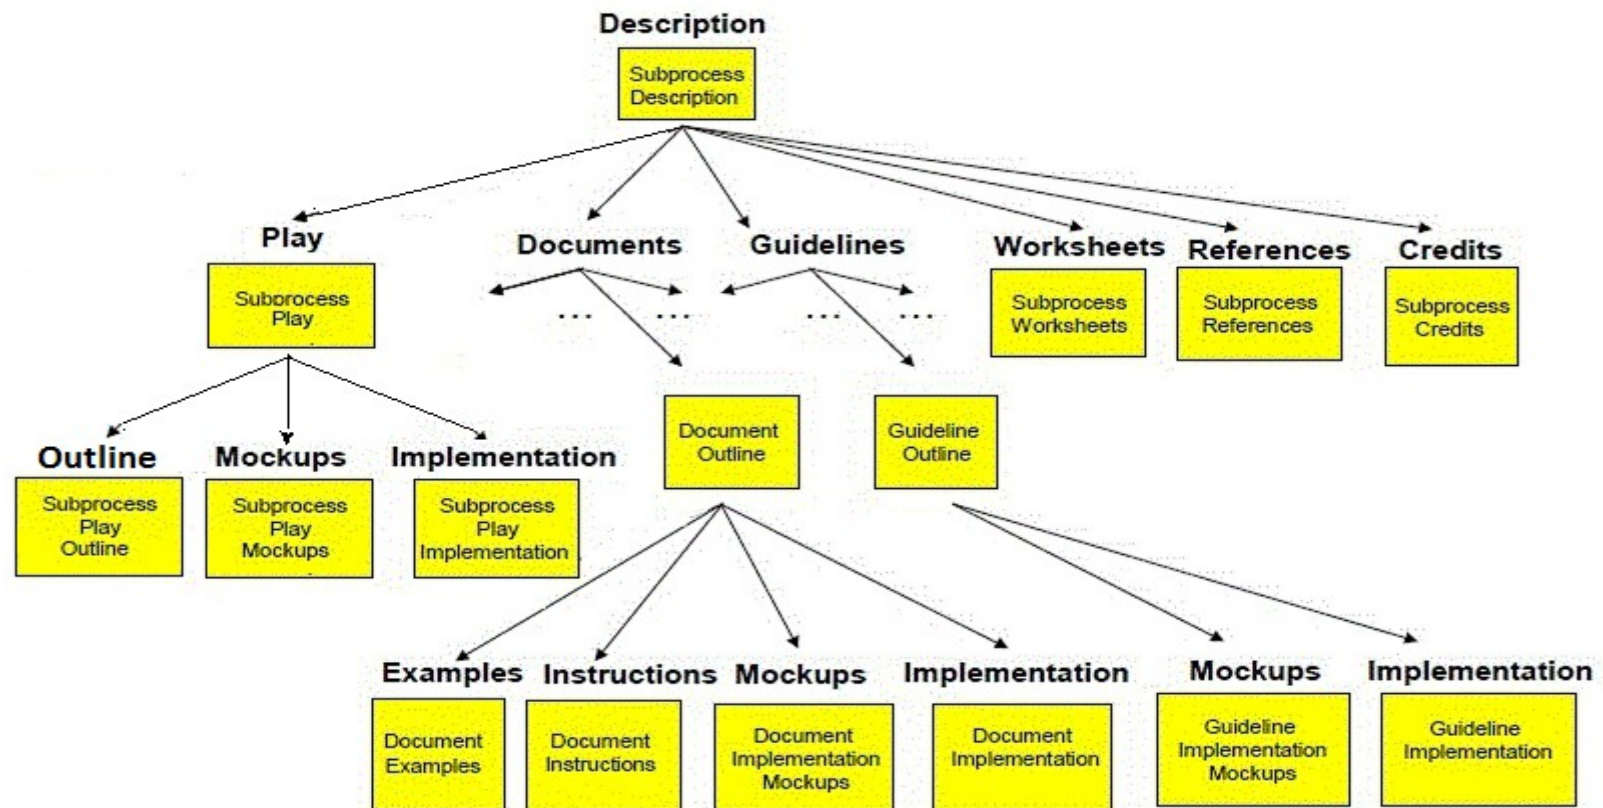

Plays describe subprocess execution.

Benefits:

- Facilitates the collection of system and organizational requirements,
 - Does not anger/upset people whose opinions are heard,
- and
- Increases the interaction between managers, process developers, and participants.

Our basic approach is to wrap organization's subprocesses in a common envelope containing "communication vehicles" that facilitate intra- and inter-organization communication.

Descriptions summarize subprocesses.

Overview of Department of Health and Human Services National Institutes of Health Grants Process Library

The objective of this tool is to help Department of Health and Human Services Health Resources Services Administration Grants Managers (and Staff) to quickly learn to build and manage Grants. We present our approach in five bullets.

- We focus on the documents that Department of Health and Human Services Health Resources Services Administration Grants Managers prepare. These documents appear within various subprocesses (e.g., 1) and within multiple organizations (e.g., 2).
- For each subprocess, we create a directory of documents for that subprocess. (e.g., 1, 2)
- For each document type, we create files to help prepare the document. These files include document overview, organization, related links, structure, references, organization samples, organization contacts, and sample documents from other organizations. (e.g., 1, 2)
- Sample documents have three levels of access: a) Unconditionally Distributable (e.g., 1, 2), b) Maintained In Organization Libraries (e.g., 1, 2), and c) Proprietary (e.g., 1, 2).
- Each organization gets worksheets for its own use. These worksheets also help add to the database as Managers go thru the subprocesses. (e.g., 1, 2)

For more information on the Department of Health and Human Services Health Resources Services Administration Grants Process Library see: paper, summary, and other process libraries.

The "Game of Telephone" Syndrome: Where People Pass-On Only Parts of the "Message"

A group of nine business professionals (seven men and two women) are standing in a line. Each person has a speech bubble above their head that says "View". The speech bubbles are connected by lines, suggesting a chain of communication. At the bottom of the image, there are two rotary telephones on the floor, one on the left and one on the right, representing the start and end of the communication chain. The background is white.

Our basic approach is to wrap organization's subprocesses in a common envelope containing "communication vehicles" that facilitate intra- and inter-organization communication.

Shakespeare Meets Freud

Process Libraries (PLs) and Electronic Handbooks (EHBs) are where Shakespeare meets Freud

- In Process Libraries (PLs), subprocesses are represented as "plays" where "actors" communicate thru the Internet. Each organization puts on its own "productions". For each role, Electronic Handbooks (EHBs) (also called Guidelines) guide "actors" thru their parts. Managers are "directors" using Worksheets as learning/management tools. Documentors serve as "playwrights". [Shakespearean]
- Organizations are represented as "families" having "multiple personalities". Subprocess "plays" and its "components" provide communication vehicles between members of the same family, different families, and families from different subprocesses. Documentors also serve as "family therapists". [Freudian]

Basic People Principles that are supported.

- Subprocesses determine tools. The approach supports people doing their jobs as they see it. Forcing additional tools on people only adds more burdens to their jobs and they will likely ignore them. Additional requirements should be integrated into existing subprocesses.
- Everyone's subprocesses should be supported as best as possible. The approach supports people seeing their jobs differently. This is often a good thing for subprocess improvement.
- Tools are role-based so that data is collected during subprocess execution. As people partake in the subprocesses, the approach supports data entry in the system. If data collection is done after the fact, the quality of the data generally suffers.
- Tools are people-based so that users require minimal training. The approach helps people to determine which steps to use. For each of the substeps (i.e., forms and documents), the approach should have clear templates, instructions, and samples.
- Tools are web-based so that users can easily partake. The web-based approach supports the reduced need to install special software on user's computers. This is especially important in the case where the number of participants is large.
- Everyone helps build the tools. The approach supports joint ownership in the subprocesses and the underlying systems which is crucial for overall acceptance.

The objective of this tool is to help Department of Health and Human Services Health Resources Services Administration Grants Managers (and Staff) to quickly learn to build and manage Grants. We present our approach in five bullets.

- We focus on the documents that Department of Health and Human Services Health Resources Services Administration Grants Managers prepare. These documents appear within various subprocesses (e.g., 1) and within multiple organizations (e.g., 2).
- For each subprocess, we create a directory of documents for that subprocess. (e.g., 1, 2)
- For each document type, we create files to help prepare the document. These files include document overview, organization, related links, structure, references, organization samples, organization contacts, and sample documents from other organizations. (e.g., 1, 2)
- Sample documents have three levels of access: a) Unconditionally Distributable (e.g., 1, 2), b) Maintained In Organization Libraries (e.g., 1, 2), and c) Proprietary (e.g., 1, 2).

Abstract

In this paper, we show how to provide editable and cost-saving process documentation tools for process developers and participants to help them quickly and effectively learn, adapt, test, teach, and work together. These tools may be added to new or existing systems. We illustrate using HHS's National Institutes of Health (NIH) Grants Management. In Section 1, we examine common problems that arise in the management of complex distributed processes. In Section 2, we provide an overview of tools that are solutions to these problems. Simply speaking, we regard subprocesses as "plays" and let organizations put on productions of the "play". In Section 3, we provide examples of these tools. In Section 4, we outline some complex distributed processes in the Federal Government that are applications of the methodology. In Section 5, we conclude with some final thoughts.

0. Introduction

In this paper, we deal with the important problem of managing complex distributed processes involving potentially thousands of participants. An example of such a process is the management of HHS's National Institutes of Health (NIH) Grants. HHS's National Institutes of Health (NIH) Grants is a key ingredient of the HHS's National Institutes of Health (NIH). Managing complex distributed processes is difficult due to 1) the complexity of the subprocesses, 2) the diversity of views of different organizations, 3) the diversity of views of teachers, documentors, managers, implementors, and participants taking part in the subprocesses, 4) subprocess Live-Cycle views, and 5) the "Game of Telephone" syndrome.
